

MRS. HICKS-LORD'S WILL.

PROVISIONS IN FULL FOR THE DISPOSITION OF HER PROPERTY.

Many Personal Effects Left to Her Servants and to Distant Relatives—The Value of Her Estate Not More Than $500,000.

Her husband, John A. Hicks, died in 1878, and she was left a widow with three children. The will of the late Mrs. Hicks-Lord is an interesting document in its revelation of this singular woman's eccentric personality, which fifteen years ago, or more, occupied a large share of public attention in New York. After Mrs. Hicks-Lord gave a series of receptions at the opening of her house in Washington square, about seven years ago, she had lived in practical retirement. The receptions were the first thing in a number of years which drew her to the attention of the younger generation of New Yorkers. The picturesque features of Mrs. Hicks-Lord's personal history belonged to an earlier period of New York City life. So at her death, last August, there were probably people familiar with most that was going on in New York life who remembered of her nothing more than her name.

One of the curious features of Mrs. Hicks-Lord's will is the minute direction which she has left for the disposal of all her articles of dress and household ornaments. The will was executed last January. The first clause directs the payments of her debts out of her estate. In the second, she devotes to the Metropolitan Museum of Art of the City of New York, the large oil painting of herself and also the statue of "The Dying Indian Maiden" and also of "The Dying Child," by Crawford. The rest of the will is as follows:

"Fourth—I give to my nephew, Jefferson Fletcher, my bric-a-brac, books, ornaments, pictures, album clock and table chairs, and also a Madonna picture now in the tea room, and also the painting in the library; and also the gilt chairs in the front parlor, the music box, and the marble statue of myself. I also give my said nephew one glass cabinet with china and dinner set therein, now in the large room, and also my ivory also my entire gold fruit set.

"Fifth—I give to my niece, Sarah E. Townsend, the fancy teacups, saucers, Venetian vases, plates, and ornaments over the piano; also two pictures of the parlor of my old house, and one small picture of a child in the library. ### DR. STIMSON'S NEW CHURCH.

Services Will Be Held To-day for the First Time in Its Temporary Abode.

The first services of the new Congregational church, which the Rev. Henry A. Stimson, D. D., is the pastor, will be held to-day in the commodious hall at West Eighth-thirtieth street and the Boulevard. It is likely that the congregation will worship in that place until a suitable building shall have been erected for its accommodation. The hall itself will seat 700 persons, and is well lighted and ventilated. It is handsomely decorated, and is connected with several smaller rooms admirably adapted to the requirements of Sunday school and class rooms.

This new Congregational parish is the outgrowth of the up-to-date movement of the population and the desire of the Congregationalists in that section to have a house of worship of their own denomination convenient to their residence. The Rev. Henry A. Stimson, formerly of the Broadway Tabernacle, of which Dr. Stimson was lately pastor, will follow him, it is said, to his new home.

It is many years since a new church of the Congregational faith was established in this city. The first Congregational minister to hold services here was the Rev. John Townley, who in 1810, at the corner of Broadway and Third street, founded the first Congregational church in this city. The first Congregational church in this city was founded in 1810, at the corner of Broadway and Third street.

Wind-up of the New York Book Company After Much Litigation.

A report of William Blake as referee passed under the accounts of George H. Brown, Jr., receiver of the New York Book Company, was filed yesterday in the Supreme Court, winding up a matter that has been prolix in litigation.

When the company went into the hands of a receiver in November, 1888, there were no assets in sight. It was found that the previous year while the company was insolvent, John B. Alden, the President and Treasurer, had in twelve separate transfers turned all the available assets over to twelve creditors. A test case was brought by the receiver against Perkins, Goodman & Co., the largest transferee, on the ground that the company was insolvent. John B. ### NEARLY $300,000 SHORT.

THE TREASURER OF RENESSEUR COUNTY UNDER ARREST.

He Transfers to His Bondsmen Securities Worth $124,000—Failure of a Bank of Which He Was Cashier—Only $60,000 of the County's Money Found.

Troy, Sept. 26.—County Treasurer George H. Morrison of Renessee county this afternoon transferred to his bondsmen real estate and securities of the par value of $300,000, and estimated to be worth not less than forty cents on the dollar. Mr. Morrison's accounts show that there is due to the county nearly $300,000, of which $180,000 is in the new County House fund. Mr. Morrison has been County Treasurer two years. The Board of Supervisors will meet on Monday to take action.

Rumors have been flying for several days relative to the financial condition of the County Treasurer. The rumors first gained strength when the National Bank of Troy, of which Mr. Morrison was formerly cashier, suspended payment, last Saturday. Mr. Morrison then said that he had on deposit $40,000 of the county money in the bank. The rumors then said that the city officials upon Mr. Morrison for $36,000 due to the city on payments for licenses under the Ralnes Excise law. There had been a controversy as to whether the County Treasurer was compelled to pay over the amount immediately. The County Treasurer's position was that the City Chamberlain and City Comptroller that the amount would be paid in a few days. Of the sum due $10,000 was paid on Thursday.

The bondsmen of Mr. Morrison as County Treasurer, becoming alarmed, held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the residence of the County Treasurer, Mr. Morrison, who was not present, or his legal representative, and to see if money could not be raised to pay the $36,000 still due to the County Treasurer. Another meeting of the bondsmen was called for 9:30 o'clock this morning. At that meeting it was the general expression that Mr. Morrison's affairs were in such a shape that it would be hopeless to endeavor to secure enough money to land him on solid ground again.

The bondsmen gave up the search for financial assistance for Mr. Morrison, and it was agreed that nothing remained but to learn so far as possible the truth about his financial obligations and what resources he had with which to meet the liabilities.

The bond of George H. Morrison, County Treasurer, was executed Dec. 12, 1894, with Francis A. Fales, Zeph F. Magill, Louis S. Crandall, Thomas Dickson, John Duke, Samuel Bolton, Jr., John Magill, Leonard Morrison, and John L. Mann as sureties. The name of George H. Morrison is also attached to a bond of $100,000, which was executed by the National Bank. The amount of the bond is $100,000, and each surety is liable for $20,000. The sureties are, however, jointly and severally responsible. It is said that this morning the sureties are liable for any deficiency in meeting the full amount of the bond, which protects the County Treasurer's position.

The Finance Committee of the Renessee Board of Supervisors were hastily summoned last night to a meeting of the Finance Committee, to come together at the County Treasurer's office. It has been ascertained that Thomas had about $600 on Thursday night.

Dennis Reynolds, his brother Francis, John Scanlon, and Peter Fox, who were arrested after the shooting and detained as witnesses at the trial of the late Mayor, were released by Police Justice Pott's Court yesterday, and charged with the murder of the late Mayor.

The theory that young Reynolds did the shooting is now being abandoned. It is now a theory of the affair. All the neighbors know that the young man was a clerk in the National Bank, and that he was a clerk in the National Bank, and that he was a clerk in the National Bank.

THOMAS REYNOLDS NOT FOUND.

The Jersey City Police Want Him to Explain the Shooting of Costello.

Roger E. Costello of Mulliken Hill, N. J., who was shot at about 11 A. M. on Friday while sleeping in the house of his friend, Dennis P. Reynolds, at 457 Henderson street, Jersey City, was slightly better last night, but was still in a critical condition. He was shot in the chest and in the back near the spinal column. Costello seemed to improve slightly after the bullet was removed. His wife has taken board in a house opposite the hospital, and attends him constantly.

No tidings of the missing Thomas Reynolds have been received. The police of all the neighboring cities and towns have been notified that he is wanted. Chief Murphy says there is no evidence that he did the shooting, but the police would like to have him come forward and make an explanation. It has been ascertained that Thomas had about $600 on Thursday night.

NE FIRE COMMISSIONER.

THOMAS STURGIS OF THE CIVIL SERVICE BOARD NAMED.

He Is an Anti-Platt Republican, but Not a Factionist. He Says—Member of the Mid-Holland League, and Expected to Sit With La Guardia. Rather than With Mr. Mayor Strong appointed Thomas Sturgis a Fire Commissioner yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Austin E. Ford. In doing so he brought great joy to the hearts of the members of the McKinley League. Mr. Sturgis is one of the gentlemen who joined with the McKinley League in organizing the new "Republican County Committee" against Mr. Platt, and he has been the executive member of that organization from the Twentieth Assembly district ever since. After his appointment yesterday Mr. Sturgis said:

"I am an Anti-Platt Republican, but not a factionist."

Mr. Sturgis added that he is at present actively engaged in managing the affairs of the McKinley League, at 408 Third Avenue.

His statement excited the jealousy of Col. James L. Stewart, the Republican leader in that Assembly district, who said he had been unable to find any signs of the Mid-Holland League there. Mr. Sturgis said that he was not a member of the Mid-Holland League, but was a member of the McKinley League, and was a member of the McKinley League, and was a member of the McKinley League.
